Comparative literature according to Andrew Alton profoundly influenced by the other members of the church and the Free Society in which he also served.
Secondly his contact with Ward and Enclosure had introduced and educated him in general ideas of the Biblical metaphor and his knowledge of certain characteristics of the symbolic language and imagery of the New Testament and especially with which was closely connected his knowledge of the action of the spirit in the lives of saints and the spiritual life of the church. He had been educated at the University of Cambridge and had studied Latin and Greek at the school of the Society of Jesus in Rome.
