

Handwritten Latin text, likely a continuation of a document or a separate entry. The script is dense and cursive, typical of 17th-century manuscripts. The text is mostly illegible due to fading and the angle of the page.

Handwritten signature or name at the bottom of the page.

Kobylecka Borisfa wskremu Cedit

Compendium... (The text is a detailed Latin document, possibly a contract or a record of a transaction. It contains several lines of dense handwriting, including names and titles. The text is mostly illegible due to fading and the angle of the page.)

